About the Author

Nina Croft was born in the north of England but headed south at the age of 18. She studied marine biology at London University before training to be a chartered accountant.

Having worked a number of years in London, the urge to head south hit again. This time it took her to Zambia, on the shores of the beautiful Lake Kariba, where she spent four years working as a volunteer. It left her with a love of the sun and a dislike of regular employment. Since then, Nina has spent a number of years mixing travel, whenever possible, with work, whenever necessary.

After traveling extensively in India, South East Asia and Africa, Nina has now settled down to a life of writing and almond picking on a remote farm in southern Spain, between the Sierra Nevada Mountains and the Mediterranean Sea. She shares the farm with her husband, three dogs, a horse, two goats, four cats and a handful of chickens.

Nina has loved reading all her life and fell in love with vampires after discovering Anne Rice at an early age. She likes to mix romance with elements of the paranormal and science fiction in her writing.
