Editorial Review

From Booklist

When the pack of increasingly feral pet dogs led by his sister clashes with a fiercer pack led by a wolf, Lucky's loyalty trumps his longing for independence, and he returns to help his friends. Later, falling in with his sister's plan by infiltrating the fiercer group, he learns a good deal about how packs of wolves and dogs function in the wild. His growing duplicity makes him miserable, though, and a double cross leaves him vulnerable. In the end, his life is, literally, at the mercy of the wolf. Written in third person from Lucky's point of view, the story reflects his interest in how the pack's rules and pecking order play out, as well as his drive to be on his own. Sensory details bring his experiences into sharper focus and create a greater feeling of reality within the scenes. The abrupt cliff-hanger at the book's end may leave avid fans eager for the third installment of the Survivors series, but many readers will be jarred by the lack of a satisfying conclusion here. Grades 4-6. --Carolyn Phelan

Review

"Well-rounded characters, deep folklore and difficult problems without obvious answers drive the story. These dogs are not just loyal human companions, but warriors, leaders and friends. Perfectly crafted." (Kirkus Reviews (starred review))

PRAISE FOR SURVIVORS: "Hunter expertly explores the tensions between responsibility and freedom; risk and safety; and loyalty and acceptance. Viewing the unfolding adventure through Lucky's eyes makes even the most mundane or familiar seem alive with magic. Wild and wonderful adventure for middle-graders." (Kirkus Reviews (starred review))

From the Back Cover

The lines between Packs will blur—and not every dog will survive.

Bella and the Leashed Dogs have finally settled in the forest, but a fierce Pack of Wild Dogs has laid claim to the land and will stop at nothing to drive the Leashed Dogs away. Now Lucky will be tested in more ways than one . . . and his true loyalties will be determined.
