Editorial Review

Review

Praise for THE ROAR

“A hugely inventive and entertaining read which grabs the reader by the scruff of the neck from the first sentence. It flies along like a laser beam from a blaster and sustains the breakneck pace until the stunning climax. A fresh and exciting take on sci-fi that will have fans crying out for a sequel” – Eoin Colfer

“Telepathically connected twins battle a totalitarian regime...Exciting, thought-provoking, and very hard to put down.” – The New York Times Book Review

“An exciting, suspenseful plot; this compulsive read should not be started at bedtime!” – Kirkus Reviews

“An unusually gripping adventure...roars to a satisfying conclusion.” – BCCB

The twins stood up, put the silver orbs around their necks, pressed the tops, and vanished.

It happened so fast that the teacher felt a surge of panic, despite the presence of guards at every exit. As if guards could offer protection from mutants like these.

"That's enough, children!" she announced nervously, her eyes scanning the room. "Turn them off."

Standing right in front of her, concealed by the invisibility shields, Mika and Ellie watched the worried teacher. And smiled.
